David Dovell grew up in the Midwest as well, in the state of Michigan. David demonstrated his entrepreneurial skills at a very young age by working with the maintenance teams at the apartments where he lived as a young boy. By partnering with these experienced people David learned a variety of skills that have served him well in both the commercial and residential building and maintenance industries. David took a position with Family Dollar, in the Maintenance Department, upon his arrival in Charlotte in 1979. He realized that it was going to take him too long to achieve his goals working for someone else so he made the decision to start his own company. As a Licensed General Contractor, running his own company, David was able to parlay the skills he had learned as a young man back in Michigan into a career that would allow him to do work for such noted companies as R.J. Reynolds and UPS. In addition David passed the tests to become a Licensed Home Inspector in the state which provided him with a broader knowledge base for his clients. David has background and skills in the mechanical, plumbing, electrical and carpentry aspects of the building and maintenance industry. He loves the challenge of remodeling because it allows for a real transformation of existing spaces. His passion for quality workmanship and service has allowed him to build a business that has grown year over year as a result of referrals from previously satisfied clients. His knowledge base is evident as he takes questions from callers on The Home Improvement Show. David and his wife Gina live in Charlotte, NC.
